'TIS THE SEASON TO GO SKATING...

We turned the plant on October 2nd and started the ice making process on Saturday the 3rd. We are hopeful to be skating by Saturday, October 10th, as long as things go well and we don't run into any hiccups.

Bellegarde School Happenings

Bonjour! It is great to be back in the swing of things at École de Bellegarde. Staff and students are all equally happy to get back to school. Our first week saw many changes and adjustments to the way we do things. As with any change, it took some time to find our rhythm, but we quickly adjusted to our new protocols. We have some new faces on staff this year. In the 3&4 class we have Mme Brooke George, and in the 5&6 class we have M Eloi Tchamtcheu.

Classes and recesses may look a little different these days. We have had to be more creative in our instruction and play. Our PAA sewing class has been combining learning with community awareness by making reusable masks. The students have come up with new games that incorporate social distancing. Everyone is doing their part to make the 2020/21 school year a success!

À la prochaine!

WHAT LIES AHEAD

Submitted by Jocelyn Hainsworth

And 2020 lurches on toward its inevitable end.

There is no way we could have imagined toilet paper shortages or March Break lasting until the second week of September. Who would have thought it was possible that the snowbirds wouldn't migrate south this fall? That church would become an online experience? That people who had never planted a garden before in their lives would till up their backyards and plant seeds. That there would be an explosion in home renovations and airlines would ground huge portions of their fleets to try to stay in business. All these things and more. It's been quite the year.

We're not done yet, though. The experts tell us that the worst is likely yet to come with 'flu season this winter. The news lately has had more and more stories of hot spots throughout the country, and even in our safe little corner of rural Saskatchewan. This is a time to step up our response, not let down our guard.

It's funny how quickly the situation can go from a remote problem that 'people in the cities' have to deal with to an OMG moment. The COVID-19 restrictions came into effect just after the letters from Sask Health had advised all us women of a certain age to make our mammogram appointments. I and three friends had booked ours all together so we could treat ourselves to a lunch date too. Of course those plans were cancelled but when we were contacted to rebook, we again arranged the same deal ... only it had to be in an actual hospital this time as the travelling machines were no longer being offered. This is what is necessary in a pandemic – health care is still important but the way it is offered needs to be modified. Because the wait wasn't going to be as long we chose Yorkton over Regina.

Within four days of completing our appointments the news informed us that the very place we had been was the new Saskatchewan hot spot. Suddenly something 'far away' had become very close and personal. Having had to process this information from a personal perspective just days earlier had made me realize just how sneaky this virus can be. You can be doing all the right things for all the right reasons, and still find yourself in jeopardy.

Since then our community finds itself with our first case. Given my recent brush with the same possibility, I am struck with how this was inevitable. Every day life keeps people in motion and if we are moving, so is the virus. My heart goes out to the people affected and I wish them speedy recovery and nothing but kindness from the community. Let us all strengthen our resolve to protect ourselves and one another as we head into the winter of 2020.

What will happen is that we will just carry on. The folks in 1918 got through the Spanish Flu and I'm sure we will come out the other side of this one too.

Meanwhile, let's focus on the next big thing. Municipal elections are coming up. The Town of Redvers and the RM of Antler both have openings for candidates; nominations end at 4:00 on October 7th. Give it some thought – it's rewarding work and an interesting learning experience. I'm even putting my money where my mouth is ... I will be running for the position of Reeve for the RM of Antler #61.

Thank You FOR YOUR VOTE!

My Mutual Insurance First Responders Contest was neck and neck between Redvers, Yellow Grass & Qu'Appelle Fire Departments for the entire seven days of voting. Although we ended up in THIRD place, which did not earn us $24,000, we are thankful for all your votes!!!

We came together as a community and averaged almost 1,000 votes per day. What an accomplishment! This shows great support from not only Redvers, but many surrounding communities, friends and family members from far and wide. Even our youth were getting involved by voting! Our department appreciates this support very much.

Congratulations to Yellow Grass Fire Department and Qu'Appelle Fire & Rescue for earning the top two spots.
